trade with the Houston Astros that brought to Cleveland a little-known Minor League outfielder named Kenny Lofton.

As the $169 million ballpark was under construction, so was the team that would make history.

It started with homegrown players such as Charles Nagy, Albert Belle, Manny Ramirez, and Jim Thome. It included several players—such as Kenny Lofton, Omar Vizquel, Sandy Alomar, and Carlos Baerga—acquired from other organizations, in a series of staggeringly astute trades.

And it was finished off in the winter of 1993-94 when owner Richard E. Jacobs gave Hart the go-ahead to sign two big ticket, big name free agents: pitcher Dennis Martinez and first baseman Eddle Murray.

Fans who attended Opening Day on April 4, 1994 were immediately struck by the new Ballpark's cozy feel. It was instant atmosphere—and the Indians made the most of it.

Any way you look at it, a look back at the first 10 years of Jacobs Field is an eyeful, an earful, and a chill-ful.

Particularly for a generation—or two or three—that came of age knowing only a drafty, decrepit, mostly empty, Stadium that was home to the kind of teams that tend to play in those kind of places, the opening of Jacobs Field was like a burst of civic and social sunshine.

Ten breathless years later, a look back at the thrills and chills that took everyone's breath away only serves to accentuate that delicious history that was made in Cleveland. It was a time when a team and town both peaked simultaneously. It was 10 years unlike the Indians franchise had ever experienced. A time never to be forgotten.

It was a time that essentially began in May of 1990, when Cuyahoga County voters passed a tax on alcohol and cigarettes to help finance construction on a new baseball-only ballpark.

Ground breaking began on January 13, 1992, one month after General Manager John Hart orchestrated a

In May and June of that year, they won a franchise record 18 consecutive home games. The Indians record in their first year in their new home was 35-16, the best home record in the Major Leagues.

For the first time since 1959, the Indians were in first place at the All-Star break. The Tribe played before sellouts in 36 of its 51 home dates, including the last 28 in a row.

But it was a season that left everyone empty, as it ended with a players strike on August 11 that wiped out the remainder of the regular season and all of the Post Season.

The 1995 Indians were simply ferocious. A combustible blend of arrogance, attitude, and ability.

With star power galore, and an astonishing mix of exploding baseball talent, the Indians simply ran roughshod over the opposition.

It was Belle at his absolute peak. Baerga at his absolute peak. Lofton at his absolute peak.

How's this for a loaded lineup: Sandy Alomar hit .300—and batted ninth! Manny Ramirez, with 30 homers and 100 RBI, batted seventh!

The season featured Eddie Murray's countdown to 3,000 hits, which the Indians' DH reached on June 30 in Minnesota.

The winning was almost ceaseless.

The Tribe's combined record vs. Baltimore, Detroit, Toronto, Kansas City, and Oakland was 48-9.

Many of the games were mismatches. The Indians won 11-6 on Opening Day, 17-7 on the last day of the season, and they bludgeoned everything in sight in most of the games in between. Consider the scores from just 12 of their wins that year: 11-0, 14-7, 11-1, 11-5, 10-5, 14-5, 12-6, 13-3, 14-4, 12-2, 11-1, and 12-4.

In one game vs. Kansas City on May 9, the Indians scored eight runs in the first inning, capped by the first grand slam in Jacobs Field history by Paul Sorrento, before making their first out.

These weren't baseball games. These were muggings.

And nestled in among the raw numbers were singular goose bumps.

Like on June 4, when the Indians were trailing 8-0 after three innings, but came back to beat Toronto 9-8.

Or on July 16, when Ramirez hit his game-winning "Wow!" home run in the 12th inning off Oakland's Dennis Eckersley.

Or on July 18, when Belle blasted a game-winning grand slam off the Angels' Lee Smith in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Or on September 30, when the rampaging Belle hit his thenfranchise record 50th home run off Kansas City's Melvin Bunch.

And Tribe fans couldn't get enough of it. The Indians broke the franchise record for home attendance—a mark that had stood for 47 years—by drawing 2.8 million to Jacobs Field.

Jacobs Field was sold out for 57 of the 71 home dates, including the last 52 in a row. That streak began on June 12. Incredibly, it would be five more years before the Indians WOULDN'T play before a sellout crowd at home.

The Indians steamrolled to the Central Division title, winning by a record 30 games, thanks to a mark of 100-44, which produced the ninth highest winning percentage (.694) in baseball history.

In the Division Series with Boston, Tony Pena's 13th inning home run, just after 2 o'clock in the morning, gave the Indians a 5-4 win in Game One, and the Tribe went on to sweep the Sox in three games.

The Indians then eliminated Seattle in six games in the League Championship Series, the clincher being one of the greatest games in Tribe history. That was Game Six, in Seattle's raucous Kingdome, where Martinez dueled towering Randy Johnson—"David vs. Goliath," Martinez called it.

The Indians won the game, and their first American League pennant in 41 years, 4-o, which almost made a loss to the Atlanta Braves in six games in the World Series anti-climactic.

Photos: Gregory Drezdzon

The 1996 Indians were every bit as statistically ferocious and intimidating as the 1995 Tribe. The first three starters in the rotation were Dennis Martinez, Orel Hershiser, and free agent signee Jack McDowell.

The rotation was so deep that, incredibly, it was the No.4 starter, Charles Nagy, who started for the American League in the All-Star Game, the first Tribe pitcher to do that since Gaylord Perry in 1974.

The Indians won 99 games, 19 of those wins coming in their last at-bat, 11 of those coming at Jacobs Field, and seven of those coming on walk-off home runs. Tribe pitchers led the league in ERA for the second straight year, the first time in 45 years that the Indians had led the league in ERA in consecutive seasons.

In April, Lofton became the Indians all-time leader in stolen bases, breaking Terry Turner's franchise record of 254, which had stood for 78 years.

On July 25, Belle hit his 227th career home run, breaking Earl Averill's Indians' record of 226, which had stood for 57 years.

In June, the Indians set a franchise record by hitting home runs in 18 consecutive games.

Thome drew 123 walks in 1996, breaking Mike Hargrove's club record of 111. Hargrove, meanwhile, became the first Indians manager in 42 years to manage the American League team in the All-Star Game.

The 1996 Indians spent 170 days in first place. They set club records for home runs and runs scored. They were the first Major League team to lead their league in batting average and earned run average in consecutive seasons since the 1957-58 Yankees.

The Indians set a franchise record for home attendance by squeezing 3,318,174 fans into Jacobs Field, where every game was a sellout. In fact, every game was a sellout before any game was played.

In an astounding feat, the Indians sold out the entire season at Jacobs Field before Opening Day. Get this: In a 26-year span from 1960 through 1985, the Indians never drew more than 1.2 million in a season. They sold 1.3 million tickets IN NINE DAYS, starting in late November, 1995.

However, the 1996 Post Season, which began with hopes soaring, ended in disappointment, with a first-round elimination at the hands of the Baltimore Orioles.

So in 1997 the Indians re-tooled.

Lofton was traded to Atlanta for David Justice. Third baseman Thome was moved to first base to make room for third baseman Matt Williams, who was acquired in a trade with San Francisco.

But the 1997 season belonged to Sandy Alomar.
It might have been the first time in history a No.9 hitter carried a team.

Alomar's season was nothing short of astounding. In April, he tied a team record by hitting home runs in five consecutive games.

In May, he began what became a 30-game hitting streak, one game shy of the longest hitting streak in Indians history, and the second longest hitting streak by a catcher in Major League history.

memorable MOMENT

INDIANS ALL-STAR CATCHER SANDY ALOMAR, JR. CAPTURES THE MVP AWARD FOR HITTING THE GAME-WINNING HOME RUN ON JULY 8, BECOMING THE FIRST PLAYER IN MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL HISTORY TO HOMER IN HIS HOME PARK IN AN ALL-STAR GAME AND A WORLD SERIES In June, he tied a Major League record by hitting four doubles in one game.

In July, he became the first Indian to ever win the MVP Award at the All-Star Game, after hitting a two-out, two-run home run in the seventh inning to give the American League a 3-1 victory at Jacobs Field. Alomar was the first player to ever win All-Star MVP honors in his home park.

Still, he wasn't finished. In the Post Season he had 19 RBI, setting a Major League record for most RBI in the Post Season.

Ah. the Post Season.

The Indians 1997 Post Season ride was one of the wildest and woolliest in Major League history. Every game, it seemed, ended in forehead-slapping "did you see that?" fashion.

After coasting into the playoffs with a record of 86-75, the Indians suddenly caught fire in the Post Season, putting together the most improbable string of dramatic victories in franchise history.

It was a Post Season run that almost never got off the ground. With the Indians five outs from elimination in Game 4 of the Division Series against the Yankees, Jacobs Field exploded in a cacophony of sound when Alomar—who else?—hit a game-tying home run off Yankee super-closer Mariano Rivera. The Indians won that game 3-2 on an RBI infield single by Omar Vizquel in the bottom of the ninth.

Rookie Jaret Wright, who would win three games in the Post Season, then beat the Yankees 4-3 in the deciding Game 5.

The League Championship Series against Baltimore was simply ridiculous, with one outlandish finish after another. With the Indians six outs away from losing Game 2, and falling behind two games to none, Marquis Grissom hit a three-run eighth inning homer off Orioles closer Armando Benitez, to give the Tribe a 5-4 series-evening win in Game 2.

In Game 3, the Indians won 2-1 in 12 innings, scoring the winning run in the bottom of the 12th inning, when Grissom scored after Vizquel missed—yes, that's right, MISSED—on a squeeze bunt attempt.

In Game 4, the Indians won 8-7 on a two-out, game-winning single in the bottom of the ninth by—who else?—Alomar.

Baltimore won Game 5, and a stunning Game 6 was played at Oriole Park at Camden Yards. The Indians won that game, and the American League pennant, on a home run by Tony Fernandez in the 11th inning—one of only three hits in the game by the Tribe.

By then, with everyone already exhausted, there was still a World Series to play. The Indians and Marlins played to a deciding seventh game, which the Tribe led 2-1, going into the bottom of the ninth inning.

You probably know the rest.

Asked in Spring Training of 1998 how long it had taken him to get over the disappointment of losing Game 7, Hargrove said, "I'll let you know when it happens."

In 1998, the Indians became just the seventh team in Major League history to be in first place every day during the regular season. The Indians led the Central Division from wire-to-wire, finishing with a record of 89-73, and winning the division by nine games.

DIVISION SERIES GAME 2 ON SEPTEMBER 30, TRIBE SKIPPER MIKE HARGROVE AND STARTER DOC GOODEN WERE EJECTED IN THE FIRST INNING, SPARKING THE INDIANS TO A 9-5 VICTORY OVER THE BOSTON RED SOX TO TIE THE SERIES AT ONE GAME APIECE.

And one of the leaders was Omar Vizquel. The Indians' incomparable shortstop was at his all-time, acrobatic, position re-inventing best. During that season, Vizquel had consecutive errorless game streaks of 70, 54, and 39.

He only made five errors all season, and his .983 fielding percentage was the second highest single-season fielding percentage for any shortstop in Major League history.

In the Post Season, the Indians beat Boston in the Division Series, but lost to the Yankees in the League Championship Series.

Undaunted, the Indians won the division again in 1999, clinching their fifth consecutive division title on September 8 — with over three weeks left in the regular season.

were relentless mashers. The Indians had four players with 100 RBI and five who scored 100 runs. Both are franchise records. They scored a franchise record 1,009 runs—the fifth highest single-season total in Major League history.

Ramirez had a ridiculous 165 RBI, breaking Hal Trosky's 63-year-old club record. Thome broke his own franchise record with 127 walks. Robbie Alomar set a club record for home runs (24) and RBI (120) by a switch-hitter, and his 138 runs scored are the second highest total in Indians history. Oh yeah, Alomar also had 37 stolen bases and won a Gold Glove. Vizquel had 42 stolen bases and won a Gold Glove.

The Indians won the first two games of the best-of-five Division Series, beating Boston 3-2 and 11-1 at Jacobs Field, but then lost three straight to Boston.

That triggered an off-season of seismic change at Jacobs Field. Hargrove was replaced by Charlie Manuel as manager, and Jacobs sold the team to Larry Dolan.

In an ironic twist, the Indians in 2000, after several years of being among the most feared offensive teams in the game, evolved into the best defensive team in the sport.

IN FRANCHISE HISTORY.

The Tribe set an American League record for fielding percentage and for fewest errors in a season. The Indians made just 72 errors. That, and their .988 fielding percentage, are both American League records.

The Indians failed to win the division that season, but in 2001 they won the Central Division for the sixth time in seven years, and took the 116-victories Seattle Mariners to a decisive fifth game before losing in the Division Series.

The Indians drew 3 million in home attendance for the sixth consecutive season, but perhaps the most historically significant event that season came on April 4.

On that date, the astounding sellout streak ended, when, for the first time in almost six years, the Indians played at Jacobs Field and the game was not a sellout.

From June 12, 1995 through April 2, 2001, the Indians played before an incomprehensible 455 consecutive sellouts.

It's not only a Major League record, but it broke the previous record by almost 400 games! The previous Major League record for consecutive sellouts was 65, by the 1992-93 Orioles.

replenished the Indians inventory of young players, and triggered the turnaround that began in 2003, when the Indians were one of the youngest teams in the Majors.

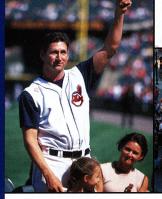

In 2004, the start of the second 10 years at Jacobs Field, those young players, and others, are making progress toward becoming the kind of team the next generation of Indians fans will perhaps celebrate 10 years hence.

Hello Tribe Fans!

Welcome to the July edition of Kate's Page! This month I'm highlighting DRESS FOR SUCCESS, a local non-profit organization assisting low-income women to make "tailored" transitions into the workforce, providing interview suits, confidence boosts, and career development to more than 45,000 women in over 75 cities each year.

Dress for Success offers two specific services to women, with the objective of directing women off of the welfare system and becoming self-sufficient through dressing and job retention programs, all of which is at no charge! Many Dress for Success clients are referred by government agencies, including homeless shelters, domestic violence shelters, immigration services and job training programs. Each client is given one suit to wear to an interview, and a second suit when she gets the job. Many agencies are able to go one step further by providing accessories such as scarves, jewelry, and purses.

BOYS OF SUMMER BACKYARD BBQ UPDATE...

Tickets remain on sale for the Second annual Boys of Summer Backyard BBQ, now through July 13. Don't miss out on your chance to host the Tribe in your own backyard! Look for Wives Association members selling tickets in the concourse at Jacobs Field during select Indians home games, or purchase your tickets at any Indians Team Shop location. Spread the word to family and friends and let's get grilling!

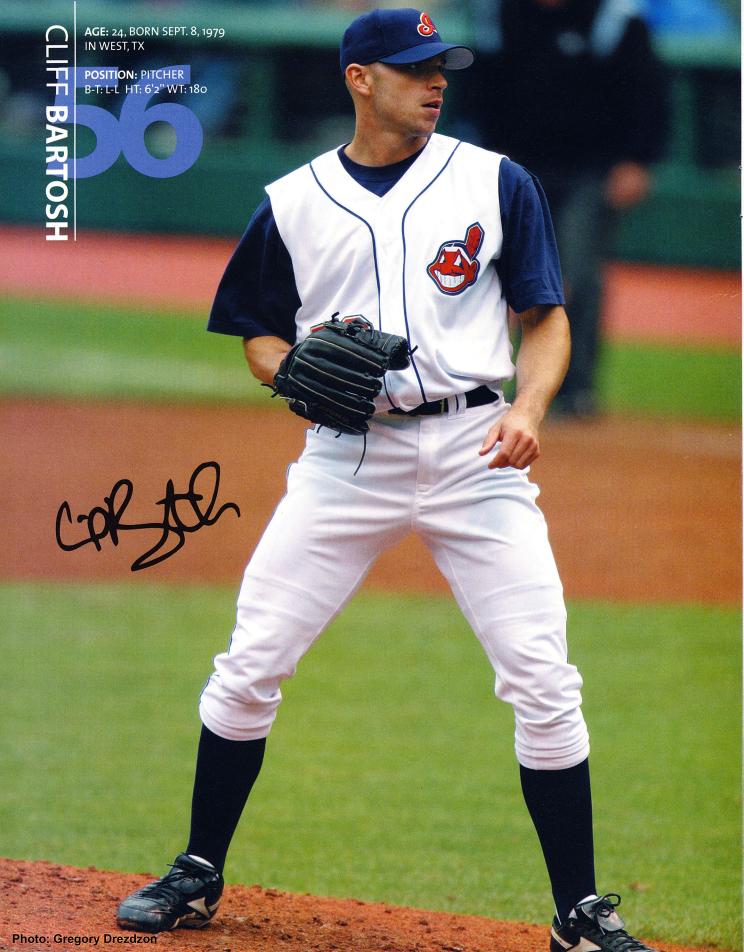

PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S GROUP (PWG) steps in once a client has found a job. PWG focuses on the important skills women need to know once they have a paycheck coming in, such as how to manage their finances, repair credit, buy a house, and take care of their family. Monthly meetings are also a part of PWG, which is a great opportunity to network, ask questions, share solutions, and develop a support structure to aid them through this transition.

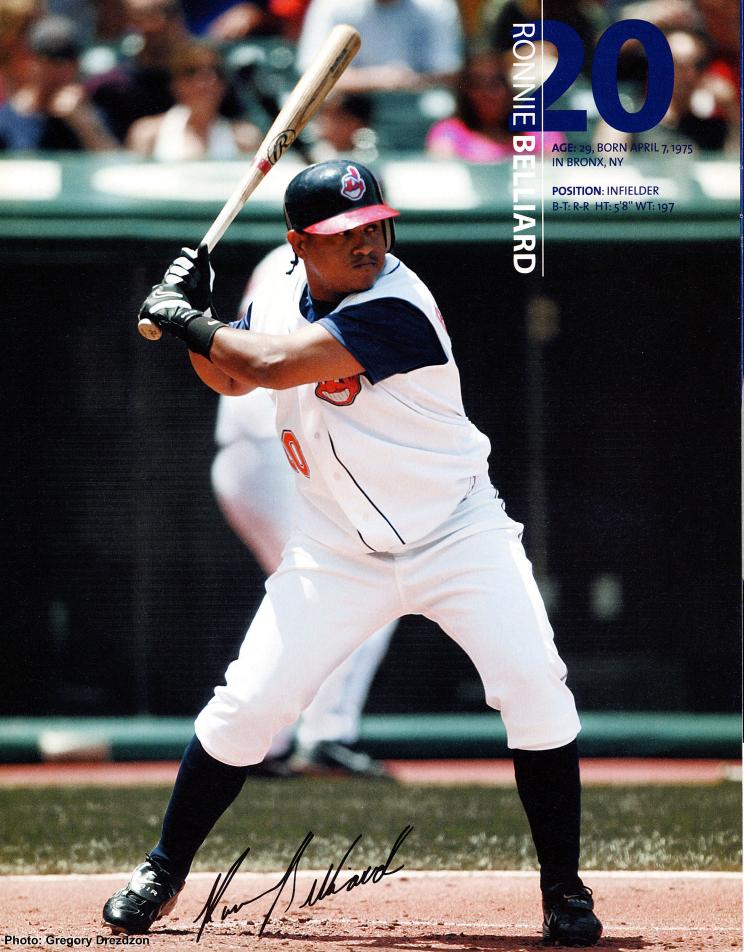

Dress for Success relies on the generous support of people committed to helping low-income women take control of their lives. There are many ways to contribute to this terrific organization, including donating new or nearly new suits, organizing a suit drive, volunteering your time, or through monetary donations. Please call 216.391.2301, or visit dressforsuccess.org to learn more about our local Dress for Success affiliate.
